THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BILL.

The other great measure of this session, the local government bill, will not get through Parliament without considerable alterations. Already notice is given of over five hundred amendments in particular clauses relating to London, likely to undergo modification. The Tory members for London, after conferring together, decided to recommend a number of alterations, want more wage. to recommend a number of alterations, among them that the municipal divisions shall correspond with the Parliamentary constituencies and that members of the board be made entirely elective, ne propor-tion of their number to be nominated as pro-

CARNOT'S TOUR.

The President Pleased With Its Effects—Boulanger's Side.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, May 5.—The Post-Dispatch correspondent was received by President Carnot at the Elysee Palace yesterdays. The President declared that his tour in the south had been the most satisfactory event in the history of the third republic, and had constituted a proof of the absolute devotion of the country to the parliamentary system. He added that the Boulanger scare was the feeblest kind of a soap bubble, scullions and grooms being apparently his only supporters. The Bonapartists, he declared, had received a fearful smub in the fact that in the Corsican Senatorial

Mr. Bland of Missouri, referring to Mr. Burrow's speech, in which that gentleman spoke of the Mills bill as a banting without acknowledged parentage, criticised the gentleman on the other side for not having virility and manhood enough to present a bantling of any character. He bitterly opposed the protective system, denied that it was the cause of the progress of the country, and invelghed against the pools and trusts which he denounced as evils directly traceable to a high tariff. As an illustration of the love of the Republicans for protection he said that if food and raiment should be showered down from the sky, the gentleman on the other side would fall down on their knees and pray to their Heavenly Father for protection against the pauper labor of heaven.

This afternoon an unknown man was run over and killed at the corner of Second and Chestnut streets by a wagon driven by Peter Hammond. The death was not due to the negligence of the driver, as it was impossible for him to check the horses in time to prevent the wheel from crushing the man after he fell right in front of it. Mr. C. Marcus A. Wolff & Co. introduced a non-resident Illinois capitalist to the local real estate market who has invested $37,500 in improved residence property, which is producing an annual revenue of nearly $3,000. The premises purchased by this Illinois gentleman consists of three modern-built dwellings of from twelve to thirteen rooms each, which are well finished in hard wood throughout. These houses we three-story stone-fronts and occupy 70 feet front by a depth of 134 feet 8 inches at the northeast corner of Chestnut and Compton avenue, being numbers 3039, 3041 and 3043 Chestnut street. M. A. Wolff, the grantor in this transaction, bought those houses about a year ago from Gen. John W. Noble for $30,000. that sum, it is said, being considerably less than what the improvements cost. tageous positions, but at the best they do little to ameliorate the intense heat and foul air. COALHEAVERS IN A STORM.

"One would think we did nothing at all, but this opinion would be changed by a visit to the boiler room during a storm. When a head or quartering sea is running, which breaks over the deck, it is necessary to close the hatches and take down the wind sails. Then the condition of the confined air becomes tunbearable. The confined air becomes thoroughly dried and heated at 120 or 130 degrees. The odors are almost overpowering, flour after hour the condition of affairs becomes worse, and after the first day the boiler room becomes a veritable chamber of torture. The men go about their work gasping for breath and it is no uncommon thing for them to drop senseless to the floor, showel in hand, when the fuanace door is opened, and I bave seen at least a dozen men who were picked up dead. But there can be no relief, as the vessel must go on at all hazards, and the death or disabiling of one means extra work for others. The men are divided into three eight-hour shifts on starting on a voyage, but I never crossed the ocean without having at least haif a dozen coal-heavers on the sick list, the consequence of which is that many more than the regular eight hours of work are required. We cannot, except in cases of absolute necessity, call upon the saliors for assistance, as they would refuse to do this work."

upon the sailors for assistance, as they would refuse to do this work."

"The coalbeavers are usually recruited from the lowest class of the population of maritime towns, as no one who could by any possibility do anything else would engage in this occupation. They seldom try more than three or four voyages, after which they leave, preferring anything to such a life. I have been informed by surgeons that three voyages are enough to permanently shatter any constitution, and I never knew a man to live for six months who stuck to his shovel. The life is not one of hardship, but of positive torture, and nothing gives me such an idea of the straits to which poverty can reduce men as the fact that a steamer never has any difficulty in securing men at $15 a month to perform this work."

To-day there was a larger audience present than on any previous day of the conference. Bishop J. F. Hurst presided and the religious services were conducted by Rev. J. D. Wilson of South Carolina. A woman seated in the first box lina. A woman seated in the first box on the second tier arose at the conclusion of the singing of the hymns and said: "Can I have the privilege of saying a few words?" All eyes were turned toward her. She was about 40 years of age, fashionably dressed and evidently suffering from hysteria. Chaplain McCabe led her out of the Opera-house. She refused to give her name. Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley claimed the floor. He said he only wanted to set himself right in regard to certain remarks he had made in regard to the eligibility of women as delegates. He claimed that as the House had adjourned yesterday without fixing any special order the rules would have to be suspended before the erday without fixing any special colors would have to be suspended rules would have to be suspended before the rules would have to be suspended before the debate could be continued.

Bishop Hurst decided that the point of order Dr. Buckley could not continue his speech. On motion the rules were suspended for the purpose of giving the committee an opportunity to report. A number of amendments were made to the rules. They were unimportant, but they created much discussion. The Committee on Fraternal Delegates reported that they had arranged for a reception to the German delegates on Tuesday evening. Lay Delegate D. T. Dissing was excused from attendance. His daughter died at a hotel last night, and he will take her remains home.

Bishop Andrews made the following announcement of committees appointed by the Bishops: Committee on the Judiciary, Samuel F. Upham, John Miley, Luke C. Queal, Charles W. Smith, Isaac W. Joyce, Wm. F. Speke, Elli F. Eitter, Louis R. Fiske and M. B. Reese.

The rules were again suspended, and Gen. Clinton B. Fiske of New Jersey took the floor to advocate the admission of women. As women were made class leaders, preachers and members of quarterly conference. Their cause was a holy one. Gen. Fiske contended that there was nothing in the law of the church which says a lay delegate shall not be a woman. It would be revolutionary to turn the women out by a vote of the General Conference, and the church could not afford to exclude them. It was foolish to say that if women are accepted men would be excluded, and if half of the lay and clerical delegation were women the body might be a great deal better than it is.

Diseases.

In the realm of disease the facts of inheritanes are most numerous and are daily accumulating. Here, alsa, they become terrible, fastail and overwhelming. No fact of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease. It meets the physician on his daily rounds, paralyzing his art and filling him with dismay. The legend of the ancient Greeks pictures the Furies as pursuing families from generation to generation, rendering them decolate. The Furies still ply their work of terror and death, but they are not now clothed in the garb of superstition, but appear in the more intelligible but no less awful form of hereditary disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures. "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Instances of hereditary disease abound. Fifty per cent of cases of consumption, that fearful destroyer of families, of cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly asys: "No organ or texture of the heady is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—affecting so powerfully the happiness of individuals and families and the collective welfare of the nations of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. WOULDN'T BE GOVERNOR.

Regarding the story that he has an eye on the Governorship of Georgia, Small said that it was a campaign lie and that he wouldn't take the Governorship if it was a campaign lie and that he wouldn't take the Governorship if it hat isn't the line of his life-work.

In his address before 8,000 people in the Temperance Tabernacie last night Small made the statement that Albert Lamar. Secretary of the Georgia, secession covention had declared that the convention would have not gone for accession if Gov. Herschel V. Johnson had not been given a drink of whisky which confused him and gave Gen. Toombs a chance to ride over the convention.

This afternoon Sam Small spoke at the tent. To-night Sam Jone speaks. To-morrow afternoon at 3:30 both will address a mass-meeting at the tent. To-morrow morning Jones will preach at Centenary Church and Small at the First Methodist. It is probable that Jones will be induced to stay several days longer than he intended.

NEAR BOB'S PLATFORM.

There is considerable talk about Small's agnostic remarks in his opening address at the tent. He said: "If there were no God and we knew it, if there had been no Christ revealed to us, and we were knowing to that fact, and if there were no Bible, there would still be 10,000 reasons for banishing liquor from St. Louis."

Some old Christians are scratching their heads and wondering how much that sentiment differs from Infidel Ingersoil's implous declaration that, "God or no God," murder is wrong; God or no God, chastity is a virtue," and so on.

yesterday for assaulting her 10-year-old child, yesterday for assaulting her 10-year-old child, Maggie, a sad case of tenement house life was revealed. The child was found crying in the street Tuesday night with a large lump on har head and bruises all over her body. She said her mother had beaten her because she refused to ask for rum on credit. "They would not give it, you know," she innocently said to the officer. On going to the house a sad sone of want, misery and dissipation was presented to the officer. The drunken mother was then engaged in beating her 6-year-old son with a piece of broom-stick. The children were sant to the Protectory, the mother to the laland.

From the assaults made on Union heroes like HANCOCK and McCLELLAN for surviving the war and remaining Demoerats as they always had been, it is plain hat many a soldier who gave his life for the salvation of the Union died with opinby such Jayhawker Republicans as In-GALLS. The death of Conkling removes from the political area the most dreaded of all Blaine's many political foes, and it is evident that Blaine's friends regard the death of Conkling as removing one of the most dangerous obstacles to Blaine's success. Conkling feared no man; bowed to no man; was a supplicant to no man. He was alike a stranger to intimidation and to commercial politics, and Biaine was without the attributes necessary to enlist Conkling in his support; but Conking is dead and the hopes of the friends of Blaine have fresh revival over spired to increased energy and hope in their mistakable indications on every side; and it is more than probable that the earnest efforts for Blaine exhibited during the last few weeks will be more earnest and more general henceforth than in the past. cessiblewhen the National Republican Convention is held on June 19. From time to time it has been stated that Mr. Blaine's plans would be so arranged that when the National Republican Convention was in session he would be on the Atlantic, homeward bound and wholly out of reach, so that he could neither decline nor accept a nomination if tendered to him. The World, however, yesterday definitely ascertained that the Maine statesman will, at that particular and critical juncture, be within comparatively easy reach so that he can readily be communicated with and can accept a call from his party, if it sees fit to enter him in the lists and he feels disposed to again encounter the hard and perlious work of a presidential campaign.

Some time ago Mrs. Andrew Carnegie of this city, who, with her husband, yearly spends some time in the Highlands of Scotland, sent an invitation to Mrs. Blaine, asking that she and her distinguished husband might join them in their yearly outing. At the time the letter was written contradictory reports were being published in almost every newspaper in regard to Mr. Blaine's health. Again there was great uncertainty as to the time of Mr. Blaine's return. On Wednesday last Mrs. Carnegle received a letter from Mrs. Blaine thanking her for her kind invitation and saying that she and Mr. Blaine's return. On The trip will in all probability be made by coach, Mr. Carnegie on receipt of the letter immediately sent word as to the time she would arrive in London. The trip will in all probability be made by coach, Mr. Carnegie favorite way of traveling along and over the border. Hence the party will proceed through the beautiful Scottlah Highlands.

Mr. Blaine's friends here assert that there is no doubt about his improved health. It would whead of the authorized date, with the obvious purpose of manipulating the old system in the interest of Francis. It is for the other counties to say whether they will yield to this dictation and allow their claims to be dwarfed and their influence to be frittered away by this old trading system, or rebuke it.

Chairman Jones Talks. PITTSBURG, Pa., May 5.-In an interview today Chairman Jones of the National Republican Executive Committee said that so far as can Executive Committee said that so far as Mr. Blaine's health was concerned, he was as well as he ordinarily is, barring a slight cold. "Some of the stories told about him," said he, "are abourd. To group some of them into one general denial, I may say that Mr. Blaine has not decided to be a candidate; he has not asked his friends to make an aggressive movement in his behalf; he has not written any letters decilning the nomination a second time, and it is not true that he will be on the ocean, out of reach of the telegraph, when the Chicago Convention is in session. Mr. Blaine said he desired to remain abroad two years but feared he would not be able to do so. I would not be surprised to hear he was coming next month, or that he would stay away until next year. No time has yet been fixed for his return. There is no denying the fact that ever since the declination there has been a growing sentiment among Republicans that Mr. Blaine should accept the leadership of the party in the next great battle. This movement has great strength and will be a powerful, if not the most powerful, element in the next convention. I do not think that it is the intention of Mr. Blaine to come out squarely for any candidate or to plumply ask his friends to support John Smith or John Jones. He is enjy human, and may of course say so and so is my friend, and I would like to see him nominated, and such an expression would have great weight." Mr. Blaine's health was concerned, he was as Receiving Snengerfest Guests. The Reception Committee of the North American Saengerbund met last night and perfected arrangements for the adoption of a uniform, which will consist of gray stove-pipe hat, dark clothes and white neckties. The committee will divide itself in three bodies, one for duty at the Union Depot for the reception of visitors, another at Central Turnet Hall, and the third on horseback for general skirmishing.

The Monepoly's Latest Scheme.

be better, the facilities greater with regard to the Eastern market than Chicago. The present situation with regard to the stock trade is the result of the schemes of one of the greatest monopolies that exists in this country. The cattle trade to-day is a monstrous, grinding monopoly and what was said by Senators Vest and Plumb in the Senate while debating the animal industry bill was only half the story.

yest and Plumb in the Senate while debating the animal industry bill was only half the story.

The establishment of new stock-yards here with accompanying packing and beef-dressing ostablishments means, if successful, not only the salvation of the stock market here but it means, unless the Chicago combination should come into it, a fight with a powerful monopoly. There is no question but what it would receive support of the eattle raisers in the West and Southwest. A ranchman writing on this subject recently discribed graphically the condition of abject submission held by the cattlemen to the Chicago cattle sydnicate. These magnates dictate prices, grinding them down to the lewest notch, regulate the supply and yet keep up the price of beef to consumers, pocketing the difference. They allow no competitors to live, crushing it by their powerful control of the market. They not only emitted the supply but they epitred the examination and distribution of thebroduct. The entire United States territory is divided between them and by fair or foul means competiors are driven out, and after this is accomplished the selling price is fixed to suit themselves.

If HBUSINESS PRACTICALLY

They are Philarmour, W. H. Swift, Nelson Morris and Himmond & Co. When the movement to establish markets and packing-houses for the West we started Armour and Swift put the pestablishments at Kansas Otty and Country of pestablishments at Kansas Otty and competitors who might be tempted to start in at these points. They are now reaching out in every direction to mantain their power.

An experienced railroad and cattle man, who has had means to know their methods, in speaking of the difficulty of fighting them, gave as quitine of their methods in its furties estimated that they have invested in the stock packing and dressed beef business notly than 55,000,000. This constitutes an enomps money power capable of destroying any inderate opposition which may arise. Having outre of the market, and by undselling drive any weak competitor of of the f

A LESSON FOR YOUNG MEN. Why Stephen Girard Discharged a Captals
Who Had Saved Thousands of Dellars,

one of his stanchest and largest ships. In command of her was a captain who had been in his service for a decade, and in whose integrity and obedience the great merchant conhis service for a decade, and in whose integrity and obedience the great merchant confided implicitly. The time of the vessel's absence was to be of long duration, and he had selected this particular captain and he had selected this particular captain and this particular ship because he was certain that any instructions he might give would be carried out to the letter, if it lay within man's brain and ship's timber. All the preliminaries had been attended to and the vossel was in readiness to leave her wharf, when Girard sent for her captain to visit him in his private office. Upon his arrival his employer placed in his hand four sealed packages. They were numbered one, two, three and four and were his instructions for the voyage. The first paper was to be opened when the ship was outside of Delaware Bay, and the orders contained therein, as well as those embodied in the other three packages, were to be followed under all circumstances. Referring to certain small but heavy cases which had been placed on board the ship Girard told the captain that they contained specie amounting in all to $100,000. The sum was to defray all expenses incidental to the voyage, and was, in fact, all the money which was to pass through the captain's hands during the whole trip. The captain took his instructions, said good-by, and a few hours later, was on his way down the Delaware, with a brave vessel under him, a cargo of grain in her held and not the faintest idea of its destination.

When he had left the waters of the bay behind, the captain broke the seal of paper No. 1. The orders were short and implicit.

"Go into Bordeaux, France, and their discharge your cargo of grain through the agent

Class to Citaria's agenta, he was to receive the control of the co

a year or two before the deposition of Charles X. and, as regards the garments of the fair sex, the change almost amounted to a metamorphosis; the waist descending from its bad slitinde between the shoulders to its natural position at the hips; sleeves hitherto tight were suddenly puffed out to pretentious amplitude and the pear-shaped, balloon-shaped or leg-of-mutton sleeve was in process of time succeeded by a wider and looser sleeve, which English dressmakers dubbed the "bishop."

Unfortunately, long waists effected the revival of the mischlevous practice of tight lacing, and stays became real instruments of torture. The dress improver ran its course and declined as suddenly as it had appeared. The "princess" robe banished bustles for four or five years, but the bustle came back with short walking skirts, and it thrives, and will thrive, and will die again, we suppose, no woman can tell when or how, notwithstanding all the flouts and jeers of the satirists and the solemn head-shakings and grave reprehensions of the moralists.

The only practical way to suppress a fashion is to associate it with infamy. Mrs. Turner, the poisener in James I.'s time, was hanged at Tyburn in a ruff stiffened with yellow starch, and yellow ruffs immediately went out of fashion. The murderess, Maria Manning, was hanged at Mersemonger and in a black satin was out of fashion. As it happens, executions now take place in private, and nothing would be gained in the way of fashion reform by hanging a female criminal whose garb comprised a huge dress-improver.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The horses at the Brook-lyn track are all now hard at work and promise to be in fine condition in a few days. Dry Monopole is acting just as though he expected to face the starter to-morrow. Grever Cleve-land is aimost ready for his trial and will, At San Trancisco recently Triboulet, form erly Safe Ban, the property of R. Porter Ashe, and a candidate for the suburban handleap onors, ran a mile and three furlongs in 2:211/2 thus beating Uncas' record made at Sheeps head Bay in 1880. Triboulet carried 117 pounds, bead Bay in 1880. Triboulet carried 117 pounds, while Uncas ran with 10 pounds less. Triboulet is to carry but 110 pounds in the suburban. Money has poured in during the last day on Ben All, Miss Ford, Hidaigo, Connemara, and Fenelon for the Suburban handicap, and on Hanover, Dunboyne, Saxony and Dry Monopole for the Brooklyn handicap, and Dry Monopole for the Brooklyn handicap. It is believed that stable money has had something to do with the low price that Ben Ali and Hidaigo have been sent in the books, and yet there is reliable information that the Haggin stable will not be represented by either horse in the Suburban, but will depend on Aurelia. Ben Ali is certainly looking well and moving in his best old-time style. If he has not developed any roguish propensites he ought to be nearly first-class this year, and at his weight will be a dangerous horse in the Suburban with Kingston out of it.

whether the Dwyer's recent purchase of Sir Dixon, will be sent to Louisville for the Derby or not. Michael Dwyer, who is at Washing-ton, has left the matter entirely in the hands of his brother Phil. Some think that Sir Dixon will not go South because Jockey McLaugh-lin's presence will be required at Brooklyn, but the Dwyers think that the horse is so easy to ride that he would stand a good show for the Derby with some jockey whose reputation is not quite so great.

A meeting of the contestants and their representatives and others interested in the match occurred to-night at which there was a warm discussion of the division of the receipts. It was decided to divide the gross receipts in equal parts, half going to the contestants and half to the management. The man getting first place is to get 50 per cent of the money going to the contestants. I. C. Kennedy of the Sporting Times will act as referee. The judges will be Arnold Pierce of the Erening Sun and James McDonough of the Star. Edward Plummer and Samuel C. Austin will be chief soorers. There was a big fight over who should superintend the box-office. Chas. Colvin of the Clipper and Donald Burns, a Scotch athietic, were finally chosen.

DISTORTED HANDS will surely come to those who clean house and wash DISTORTED HANDS will surely come to these who clean house and wash clothes in the old-fashioned way—with soap. How can it be otherwise? You rub—rub—rub—rub, and you ache—ache—ache. You spend hours inhaling the hot steam and odors which rise from the tub, impregnated with the filth of soiled clothing, and with all this you have not obtained the best results.

WITH PEARLINE a delicate woman can do a large wash. You do not have to rub-yourself and your clothes to pieces. You do not have to inhale fetid steam; when finished you are not too tired to see that your work is well and economically sone, and that you have saved many hours of woman's hardest work.

JAMES PYLE'S PEARLINE is the modern soap. Beware of imitations.
